OVERVIEW

Prior to joining Hackett Feinberg, Leah worked at a boutique Quincy firm specializing in civil litigation where she started as a paralegal and was subsequently hired as an associate. Leah gained extensive experience in matters including consumer protection, housing, contract disputes, and personal injury. Leah has successfully resolved her cases through trial, mediation, and settlement.

Leah attended law school in the evening while working full time at a private Boston based investment advisory and trust firm. While in law school, Leah participated in the Defenders Clinic where she represented criminal clients in all phases of the court process, from arraignment to trial and post-conviction hearings.
