OVERVIEW

Hackett Feinberg negotiates, structures, and closes all types of financing transactions for the healthcare industry.

We are agile with respect to modifying the financing structures on these types of deals to reflect the constantly evolving nature of this specialized market sector. We understand the business of healthcare and can ably guide our lenders through the industry's complex and changing legal landscape.

Financial institutions rely upon us to guide them through the perfection of security interests in government receivables, the limitations on lien enforcement, and the realization of collateral subject to healthcare-related statutes. We are skilled in working with lenders to mitigate the risks associated with taking government receivables as collateral for a loan. We are knowledgeable as to the applicable Medicare and Medicaid "anti-assignment provisions," the use of "double lockbox" arrangements, three-party account agreements, and account control agreements.

We have worked with major national and regional banks and other lenders to address all other types of healthcare financing and industry-specific capital-related matters.
